WORSHIP OF THE SUN TREE

WBAI, NOW MORE THAN EVER

As WBAI completes its Fall Marathon, the country now has a President-Elect who is against the ERA, abortion, the minimum wage, social security, socialized medicine and social programs for the poor; he is for nuclear power, stockpiling the military, deregulating corporate expansion, supporting the white-controlled government of South Africa, the rightist dictatorships of El Salvador and Guatemala. . . . He believes we should have stood behind the Shah of Iran and Samoza of Nicaragua, and he may be interested in blockading Cuba.

In order for alternative ideas and the free exchange of various political perspectives to survive in this nation, it is essential, now more than ever, that organizations like WBAI continue to exist.

WBAI's Fall Marathon has been the best fundraising drive we have had in over five and a half years. On Wednesday, November 5, at about 11:30 PM, the final tally was $125,540. There are many people to thank. The backbone of this particular marathon was a spirit of cooperation; our department heads, our producers, our volunteers, our listeners functioned as a collective; the organization worked, because we all worked together. I thank Station Manager Rosemarie Reed and Program Director Samori Marksman for helping to create this spirit of cooperation, and I thank the Department Directors James Browne, Rick Harris, Isaac Jackson, Robert Knight, Dave Metzger, Bill O'Neill and Eileen Zalisk for working together in developing the format for this marathon.

I thank Linda Perry for organizing our volunteers; I thank Lynn Samuels and Fred Kleinke for being our Subscriptions Dept., and I thank Dennis Coleman and Tom Alberti for doing many odd and helpful jobs. I thank all of the people who were on the air (or working behind the air), all of the people who answered the phones, and I thank, most particularly, all of you who listened, understood and subscribed. With your help as participating listeners and listener-sponsors, we can and we will survive the next four years.

Joe Cuomo, Marathon Coordinator

IN THE WAKE OF NOV. 4th

During the weekend prior to the Nov. 4th election the Regency Theatre was featuring Mr. Smith Goes to Washington with Jimmy Stewart, and The State of the Union with Tracy and Hepburn. That well-lit marquis seemed strangely and appropriately nostalgic for the last few years. For those of us who felt like the 1960's left us in a vacuum of marginality, there was the nostalgia and innocence of the 1930's, or the superb performances of Tracy and Hepburn as the first interesting, if not completely liberated couple on the silver screen. Yes, those films represented a sense that somehow those were the good old days, or at least here were films that transcended mere time and gave us lasting enjoyment year after year.

Following Nov. 4th those two films took on an even more ironically nostalgic meaning. It was another actor, Ronald Reagan, not Jimmy Stewart or Jimmy Carter who was now in Washington. We also found ourselves with a Republican Senate thanks in great part to the New Right Political Action Committees. McGovern, Church, Bayh and Culver, the Stalwart Liberals of the Senate were replaced by Alfonse D'Amoto-like clones backed by the New Right. By late evening we realized on Nov. 4th that things were worse than we had imagined.

As we had all done this year, as we seem to do every 4 years prior to the election of a president, we argued and debated about what the election actually meant, if anything. Should we vote for Carter to keep Reagan out of office? Should we forget this year and vote for the Citizens Party to build for 1984? Should we merely vote for a third party as a protest vote or was it worth voting at all? Perhaps, not voting at all would mean more in the long run than voting for the lesser of two evils or a third party that could not win and was, in the end, just another empty gesture of our frustration.

Like most of you, we at WBAI discussed and debated in the hallways. We discussed, argued and debated with you over the air. You heard all the third party candidates or their representatives on our airwaves many times. You heard an entire day on the implications of a Reagan Presidency. You heard an entire day on the Ascendancy of the New Right, from the Klu Klux Klan to the electronic Churches and the Political Action Committees. You heard an entire day of Womens programming often focusing on the implications of a Reagan presidency on the ERA, on the strength of the anti-abortion movement and the future of the womens movement in the 1980's.

In the end, after all the analysis and debates over "what is to be done," many of us went into the voting booths holding our noses and voted for Carter. Others chose an appropriate third party hoping that we weren't cutting our noses to spite our face. Others, approximately 48% of the country's eligible voters, decided that not voting was their message to the powers that be.

In the months and years that follow we'll all be finding out what Nov. 4th brought us. Now that the election theatrics and hysteria is over, we can begin to work for 1984 and beyond. None of us can say right now what the next 4 years will bring but many of you were concerned enough to come back to WBAI to listen to our coverage and cast your financial vote of confidence. We hope you support and energy doesn't fade. Neither this radio station nor the country can afford to go back to business or complacency as usual. Reacting to one crisis one year, be it Three Mile Island or a Reagan Presidency, and forgetting about it the next will not help us to avoid a repeat performance of Nov. 4th in 1984. We can no longer merely react to a crisis. We must build so as to avoid the next crisis.

WBAI cannot be a movement in itself. All we can do is bring you information and analysis, and give the communities involved in change a chance to air their struggles. We can attempt to speak to you who are consumers, you who are workers, tenants or members of any numbers of communities struggling to survive and grow. We can reflect your concerns, your needs and your aims and in doing so be able to form a network where interests will merge and coalitions will form. We can only reflect change; we can not make change. It only goes to say that with your continued support we will be there not only in times of political crisis, but hopefully as an everyday part of your life. Keep in mind that it's Mr. Reagan who has gone to Washington, but the State of the Union under his Presidency will affect all aspects of our lives.

Dave Metzger

The tree birth of Osiris recurs in Adonis; both are "vegetation gods," as is the infant Jesus, the Babylonian grain god, the virgin-born ear of wheat, lying in his wooden manger.

In the symbolic equations of a Feminine that nourishes, generates, and transforms, tree, djed pillar, tree of heaven, and cosmic tree belong together. And the childbearing tree may be further differentiated into treetop and nest, crib and cradle. That is why the New Year's festival in Egypt is also called the "day of the child in the nest," while the birth of the day, as time of the sun's little birth, is essentially identical with the birth of the years as the sun's great birth.

Dear WBAI,

While I can't listen to all of your programming, it seems to me that BAI, while having an abundance of shows detailing the folly of nuclear power, the dangers inherent in radioactive wastes, and the greed of power companies, seems to be missing a rather important point: that the danger of several thousand or even a hundred thousand people being injured or killed by radioactive leakage or even a terrorist's plutonium bomb is totally dwarfed by the fact that several hundred million of us in the United States and Soviet Union are twenty-four hours a day under the threat of targeted nuclear weapons that in two hours could eliminate us just as surely as if we were each assigned our own personal executioner. What would have been the paranoid fantasy of a lunatic decades ago is simple fact today. I am now in my mid-twenties and remember the problems people had in the early Sixties adjusting to the fact that at any moment due to the conscious intent of a political leader, a technical error, or military mutiny, their lives could be snuffed out with the help of the then-new ICBM. Today as I write this letter the arsenals of the superpowers are many times that of the Cuban Missle Crisis days, and yet I (through not listening enough, I hope?) have not heard a single BAI program discussing the collapse of the SALT treaty with the same urgency accorded Three-Mile Island, even though the number of potential deaths involved is so much greater. I understand that something like the SALT process which often seems to simply channel rather than slow the arms race, doesn't have much romantic appeal, especially since its fruits may not come for decades if at all. Yet even as a framework to start within, it's all we have at this point, and however much we may all despise and mistrust the American and Soviet leaders, I think we have to recognize that fact.

I realize that BAI has given extensive coverage to events in the Middle East which were partly responsible for the present defeat of SALT. But I wish that more time could be given to the specific and absolutely terrifying questions involved in the present state of the arms race.

Sincerely,
Peter F. Day

Starting in October, WBAI has been running a 13 part weekly series on the history and proliferation of the Nuclear Arms Race. That series can be heard Thursdays at 6 PM.

There are other programs that deal with the issue of the Arms Race, Nuclear Proliferation and detene. They are usually tied into programs on the economy, international politics or programs like our Live Anti-Draft Teach In from Queens College which we broadcast on October 23rd which included a lengthy presentation on the Arms Race and detente by Nobel Laurete George Wald.

Dear Linda Perry;

The month—and you, especially you—have inspired this:

October, that glittering month awaits in the bush where the window is busy with weeks. They still defeat her,
with whom she has trafficked for years,
but what if she, puttering with rake,
with shears, should suddenly discover her fingers have gone numb? On bent knees, her face lifted so the black streaks of earth seem time's batterings, she may yet remember the high shrill stars at the end of summer and sing, for behind them a darkness not earth parts gently again and again. And if then, brow breaks in light sweat so she wears
the mask that runs to mud along bone, watch her, lean close and hear her
stab as deep as ever through the hours.
She was beautiful once and may be again.
In October the leaves are lipped in ice,
but heat, like hope, lingers in flowers
and nails and the secret song she sings.

Thanks to all of you who took the time to write Washington about the Bauman Amendment. Now, if you know of anyone who could benefit from BAI advertising tell them about us. We may as well do as much as we can, while we can, to get advertising revenues. We are a divese group of listeners, highly intelligent, selective consumers, aware socially & politically and concerned with our environment. Bookstores, restaurants, and services fare well on our pages.

We are also reopening a monthly Letters column. Give us feed back! In the past not knowing from one month to the next about space, deadlines or programming has cut us off from you. Now with the new program director Samori Marksman and David Jackson, publicity and promotions person, we need to open up again.

Look forward to those letters!

Renalda Higgins

In the last Folio we misspelled Allen Pearlman's name (with the Superman photo). Allen regularly submits cartoons and that adds spunk to the station's walls. Here's another.

The Folio wants to send out a special thanks to Ronald Troyen, Joe Cuomo, Dave Metzger, Linda Perry, James Browne and Rick Harris. Rick where would we be??? Thanks.

TO: Everyone
FROM: Rosemarie Reed

Well, here's the latest: We have another extension on our lease for our transmitter at the Empire State Building, 'till January 31, 1981. I'll keep you posted.

Together they embark on a picaresque odyssey through the galaxy, aided by quotes from the Guide.

8:00 A TRIBUTE TO VINICIUS DE MORAES
A performance-documentary on the Brazilian poet. Produced by William Moore.

Poem for Chirstmas
By Vinicius De Moraes

For this we were created:
To remember and to be remembered
To cry and to make cry
To bury our dead —
For this we have long arms for the farewells
Hands to gather what is given
Fingers to dig into the earth.

And thus our lives will be:
An afternoon always to forget
A star to distinguish itself in obscurity
A road between two tombs
For this we need to hide
To speak softly, thread lightly, to see
The night and sleep in silence.

There isn't much to say
A song over a cradle
A verse, perhaps, of love
A prayer for someone's health
But it is this very hour we cannot forget
And for this blessed time
We give our hearts deeply and simply.

Because it was for this that we were created:
To hope for the miracle
To participate in the poetry
To discern the face of death —
Then suddenly never more will we wait
Today at night, a child; scarcely from the bowels of death
We are born, without measure.

WHOLE LIFE TIMES

The Whole Life Times is a free, nationwide publication that is helping to create a new network of politically, socially and spiritually conscious people.

The Whole Life Times is distributed free in over 200 health food stores, bookshops, whole food restaurants, and colleges in the greater New York area. In our first New York-based edition, you'll find a highly informative article on WBAI by Paul Hoessel and a piece by Jon Kalish on the upcoming Agent Orange trial plus many other timely features. In future issues we will have articles on practical political alternatives . . . diet and behavior . . . humanizing the workplace . . . cancer alternatives . . . nutrition in public schools . . . nuclear power and peace . . . and much more. Many of these articles will be by people you've come to know through WBAI.

Until now we've offered The Whole Life Times as a free publication, paid for in part by advertising. But in order to continue to expand our editorial content, to continue to bring you the news we have to offer, we need your subscription support.
